What homosexual activists are demanding

By Peter LaBarbera
Human Events
May 1, 1993

Hundreds of thousands of homosexuals converged on Washington last week for the "Lesbian, Gay and Bi Equal Rights and Liberation March." The media provided supportive coverage linking the gays' cause to civil rights crusades of the past, and portrayed homosexuals as innocents just asking for a fair shake. But even as gays yearn to be counted among the mainstream, their record betrays a lifestyle and agenda far out of line with what most Americans consider normal, decent and just.

Unfortunately, much of the real homosexual agenda—and the realities of "gay" life—remains buried in the homosexual subculture to which the average American is seldom exposed.

Prominent homosexual leaders and publications have voiced support for pedophilia, incest, sadomasochism, and even bestiality.

What we need to give the Christian right is a solid sock to the jaw—not a whiny plea for forgiveness.

No taboo is inviolable. Gay activists routinely call for legally binding "marriage" between homosexuals—even while ridiculing traditional standards of fidelity. In fact, most Americans would be shocked to hear how loosely many gays define "monogamy."

As shown by the following quotations—all taken verbatim from the gay press and gay-authored documents—homosexuals demand that their bizarre lifestyle must be both accepted and legalized.

Much of this dubious agenda will be solidified should homosexual activists succeed in their current fight for acceptance in the U.S. military and passage of a national law that gives gays legally protected "minority" status based on their "sexual orientation."

Gay victories in these areas would put the force of law behind their sexual behavior—effectively forcing others who find homosexuality repugnant to modify their views to accommodate gays, all in the hallowed name of "civil rights."

Ultimately, homosexuals seek validation for their way of life—through the manipulation of law and culture. Their cause gains in the eyes of many Americans when it is mistakenly cast as a fight against "discrimination."

Gay activists know that the more Americans know about their real agenda and conduct, the less sympathetic they will be toward their cause. It is easy to see why when one considers the quotations below. Let us begin with some of the demands of the gay organizers of the April 25 "March on Washington."

"Civil Rights" bill/repeal sodomy laws

"We demand passage of a Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender civil rights bill...; repeal of all sodomy laws and other laws that criminalize private sexual expression between consenting adults."

—1993 March on Washington Demand #1. [Note: "Transgender" refers to transvestites (cross dressers) and those who have had or desire sex-change operations.]

Adoptions/redefining the family

"We demand legislation to prevent discrimination against Lesbians, Gays, Bisexuals and Transgendered people in the areas of family diversity, custody, adoption and foster care and that the definition of family includes the full diversity of all family structures."

—1993 March on Washington Demand #3

Gay curricula in schools

"We demand full and equal inclusion of Lesbians, Gays, Bisexuals and Transgendered people in the educational system, and inclusion of Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender studies in multicultural curricula."

—1993 March on Washington Demand #4

Multiple partner "unions"

"Legalization of multiple partner unions."

—Demand #46—under the "Discrimination" category—of unofficial draft list of 55 demands first put forth by the organizing committee for the 1993 March on Washington, reported in Washington Blade, May 22, 1992.

Pedophilia defended

"NAMBULA's [North American Man/Boy Love Association's] position on sex is not unreasonable, just unpopular..."

"The love between men and boys is at the foundation of homosexuality..."

—Editorial, "No Place for Homo-Homophobia," San Francisco Sentinel (one of that city's three main gay newspapers), March 26, 1992.

"The implementation of laws that recognize sexual relationships among youth, between consenting peers."

—Demand #7—under the "Civil Rights" category—of unofficial draft list of 55 demands for 1993 March on Washington, Washington Blade, May 22, 1992.

"I think it's something [referring to pedophilia] that is a legitimate area for exploration."

—Sasha Alyson, owner of Alyson Publications, the largest independent gay publishing house, which also publishes Daddy's Roommate and the line of pro-gay children's picture books that ignited the "Children of the Rainbow" curriculum controversy in Queens, New York City. Reported in Lambda Report, February 1992, based on interview with author.

"How many gay men, I wonder, would have missed out on a valuable, liberating experience—one that initiated them into their sexuality—if it weren't for so-called molestation?"

—Carl Maves, "Getting Over It," The Advocate, May 5, 1992, p. 85, in review of Growing Up Gay in a Dysfunctional Family, by homosexual author Rik Isensee. Maves is critical of Isensee for concurring with the presumption of "homophobic" society that sexual molestation is always a harmful developmental experience in the life of a child.

"All youth need to be provided with positive information about homosexuality that presents it as a viable adaptation. We

Senate confirms President's lesbian activist nominee

By Patrick Trueman, Legislative Counsel
American Family Association, Washington, DC

The United States Senate recently voted 58 to 31 to confirm lesbian activist Roberta Achtenberg to a powerful position as assistant secretary in the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for fair housing and equal opportunity. As a member of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, Achtenberg led an effort to force homosexual scout leaders on the Boy Scouts. This prompted thousands of outraged constituents to call

With the Senate's connivance, Achtenberg now holds a position at the Department of Housing and Urban Development where she can be expected to try to force landlords, regardless of their religious beliefs, to rent to homosexual couples and where she can demand affirmative action for homosexuals wherever HUD exerts authority over state and local governments.

Ironically, if Achtenberg were a heterosexual, she would not have been confirmed. She won because years of massive propaganda by the homosexual movement pressured many senators to vote "yes" despite all that was known about her, simply to avoid being labeled as "homophobes." Don't bother to look up that word unless you have a very recent dictionary. It was coined a few years back by the homosexual P.R. guys. It means one who fears homosexuality but, in this day of political correctness, it has come to mean disagreement with whatever the homosexual movement wants—and it wants a lot. It is an epithet designed to stifle critical thinking about the actions and agenda of homosexuals. It has helped make them a force far greater than their numbers. It has given them clout to confront the Judeo-Christian morality that they flout.

One may fairly ask why Achtenberg was nominated when, by her own admission, she was not an expert on housing. The answer is clear: the Clinton Administration is trying to lead a cultural revolution in America. Public acceptance of homosexuality is only one part of that revolution, but the appointment of homosexual activists to key federal jobs is critical to its success. Expertise in housing was not what Mr. Clinton admired in his nominee. Rather, it was her record of radical homosexual activism.

The Senate's vote was the first of many needed for the eventual victory of Clinton's cultural war. It was also a wake up call to Americans who hold Judeo-Christian values and who expected the Senate to vote "no" on Achtenberg. Soon the Congress will take up such issues as homosexuals in the military, public funding of abortion, and the bill requiring that all states allow abortion on demand throughout all nine months of preg-their senators in the days before the vote urging them to oppose the nomination. The White House was clearly worried by the campaign against her. In fact, Vice-President Al Gore was brought to the Senate floor in case his vote was needed to break a tie. (Achtenberg was the only nominee in this Administration to have a recorded vote—all others were approved by a voice vote, because they generated little criticism.)

Here are a few other things known about this Clinton nominee prior to the vote: She praised ACT UP, the radical homosexual group that disrupted and profaned a Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City; she was a judge at a "Mr. Safe Sex Contest" at a San Francisco "cruise bar;" in a convertible hearing a sign that said "Celebrating Family Values" she rode in a recent San Francisco "gay pride" parade with her lesbian lover and "their" seven-year-old son (Behind them in the parade marched professed pedophiles, members of the North America Man-Boy Love Association.); she fought San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein when the Mayor tried to close the city's homosexual sex clubs, called "bath houses," as hotbeds of AIDS infection. For Achtenberg, the bath houses were "sex positive environments."

The Senate knew that Achtenberg has always used her political position to advance the homosexual agenda and that she lobbied the President specifically for the position she eventually received. The Senate could reasonably assume that she would go on doing what she has always done.

Congress to vote on tax-funded abortion

President Clinton's desire to see all taxpayers pay for abortions will get a hearing in the Congress by early July. Earlier this year the President asked Congress to eliminate the Hyde Amendment which prohibits federal funding of abortions except to save the life of the mother. The National Right to Life Committee estimates that up to 500,000 elective, non-life threatening abortions will be paid for per year if the Hyde Amendment is eliminated. Opinion polls continue to show that nearly 70% of the American public opposes tax-funded abortions.

The House of Representatives will take up the issue first and the Senate will vote soon thereafter. Your Congressman and Senators need to hear from you NOW on this. One phone number can reach them, 202-224-3121.

nancy, the so-called Freedom of Choice Act. Time will tell if the President will be similarly successful on these culture-changing issues. But the massive call-in campaign opposing Achtenberg served notice to the Senate and the President that a great segment of the American people who share Judeo-Christian values now

Police estimated that only 300,000 showed up—a serious setback for homosexual activists.

Despite the low numbers, the news media...framed the issue around the question of "discrimination"—just as organizers prefer. But lesser-reported aspects of the gay march demonstrated the dangers of confusing homosexuals with legitimate minorities.

Notably, the harshest reaction to the march has come from people who watched it on C-SPAN, which covered the events non-selectively, unedited, and without comment. Topless lesbians, drag queens, the "Radical Faeries," and an abundance of obscene jokes were on display for all to see. Viewers were particularly angered at the inclusion of children in a parade rife with such crude eroticism, according to the Washington Times.

One March on Washington event that drew little media scrutiny—C-SPAN included—was the "S&M Leather-Fetish National Conference," which catered to the "leather community," or those interested in sadomasochistic sex, commonly known as S&M. This event was on the official schedule of events and was set up with the help of the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force, according to "leather" organizers.

For sale at S&M tables were leather "cat-o'-nine tails" whips, chained leather goods, handcuffs, canes, and other assorted implements used by S&M practitioners. A Baltimore company calling itself "Stocks and Bonds" sold medieval-style stockades and body racks to which homosexuals strap themselves with legs and arms outstretched for S&M sex. Sitting atop the Stock and Bonds table was a miniature Ken doll dressed in leather, his outstretched limbs strapped to a tiny body rack.

At another table run by a Cincinnati-based outfit called Acme Leather & Toy Company, a leather-clad man hawked electric dog prods of varying voltages—for use in jolting a partner during S&M sex play. The same man was giving demonstrations on a more advanced electric shocking device which hooked up to a small hand-cranked generator attached to wires that fastened to the skin. Each turn of the crank inflicted more pain, as in movie torture scenes.

In the back of the room, near the display for Drummer magazine, men were engaged in periodic floggings of one another's buttocks in a kind of public exhibition of elementary S&M techniques. As a crowd looked on approvingly, one man—using a cat-o'-nine-tails—would whip the rear end of the other who was bent over submissively, grasping his own ankles.

pulled-down projector screen, was the visage of a seated man in a shirt and tie with his fist fully inside the anus of a naked man standing beside him. This reporter had read and heard about this grotesque gay practice of "fisting," but seeing an actual photo of it was a most revolting experience. The exhibit was produced by the "Kinky Art Slide Show."

Fisting has been universally denounced by health professionals as a severe hazard due to the damage it can cause to the rectum and internal organs.

Upon leaving the S&M convention, this reporter paused outside the auditorium to take a picture of a man clad in a dog chain and leather sash riveted with the "International Slave 1993."

Interestingly, one item on the "leathermen's" political agenda is to pressure the American Psychiatric Association (APA) to change its official definitions of sadism, masochism, and sadomasochism from being considered a "disorder" to include "respect for consensual S&M relationships." The demand may not be too farfetched. Twenty years ago, gay activists succeeded in pressuring the APA to remove homosexuality from its list of disorders.

President Clinton personally is providing White House legitimacy to sadomasochists. Open S&M advocate Bill Hileman was one of 11 homosexual activists who attended an unprecedented Oval Office meeting with Clinton April 16.

March organizers, after deliberation, agreed to permit the North American Man/

Boy Love Association (NAMBLA) to participate officially in the rally—as long as they did not carry their banner for critics to see.

If "leather sex" is still a minority concern among homosexuals at large, the demand for gay "marriages" is not. To dramatize this central goal of the movement, organizers held a mass wedding/demonstration for gays the day before the march. Troy Perry, pastor and founder of the Metropolitan Community Church (MCC)—the largest gay church with branches across the nation—officiated the event. Hundreds of homosexual couples participated in the politico-religious ceremony, for which $10 "wedding certificates" were issued.

Perry introduced a series of lesbian and gay ministers and their lovers before addressing the assembly. He urged the homosexual couples to show frequent public affection. "The sooner America gets over our 'flaunting,' the better off we will all be," he said. "Be who you are. You don't owe apologies to anybody!"

Perry continued, "Don't let those ideologically bigoted Christian groups in this country...tell you you can't be spiritual."

For the biblical part of his fiery sermon, Perry launched into the latest gay revisionism, holding that Ruth and Naomi, and King David and Jonathan of the Old Testament were homosexuals, interpretations that have angered Jewish and Christian biblical scholars.

After the speech by Perry and the reading of an Apache prayer, the couples were Geffen announced last November that he is a homosexual.

Massachusetts approves first lesbian adoption

Two lesbian surgeons became the first homosexual couple to win approval from Massachusetts to adopt a child.

Susan Love and Helen Cooksey won the right from the state Supreme Court in September to adopt the five-year-old girl they have raised since birth. The girl was conceived by Love through artificial insemination from Cooksey's biological cousin.

Cobb County citizens support community with "Buycott"

While homosexual activists boycott Cobb County, Georgia, because county commissioners passed a resolution stating that the gay lifestyle is incompatible with community standards, a group of citizens who support family values are calling for a "buycott."

The group - Consumers for Cobb - hope to combat the homosexual initiative and draw attention to the "real Cobb County."

"In the simplest terms, a 'buycott' is designed to encourage people to visit Cobb County, eat in its restaurants, stay in its hotels and motels, take a dip at White Water, spend the day at Six Flags and spend some extra time and get to know the people of this great community," a group spokesman said.

The Commission of Cobb

County passed the resolution in August in response to neighboring Atlanta's "domestic partners" bill, which allows homosexual couples to receive city benefits.

The issue eventually focused on the appropriateness of county funding for the arts. Some local theater productions contained material contrary to family values. The commissioners voted to cut all funding for the arts.

Homosexual activists responded by targeting a boycott at businesses that are planning to book meetings or conventions at the $43 million Cobb Galleria Centre, scheduled to open in early 1994. Cobb County officials said recently that the boycott pushed by homosexual activists is failing. They sight the case of Georgia Society of Association Executives who had cancelled their convention, but later reversed their decision under pressure from its members.

"We've booked conventions hosting 17,600 additional people since the resolution passed," Commissioner Gordon Wysong said. "That says this [boycott] was the cause of a very, very small group of people trying to get even with us."

Austin, Texas, extends benefits to homosexual "domestic partners"

The Austin Lesbian/Gay Political Caucus has pressured city officials into extending health insurance and other benefits to "domestic partners" whether heterosexual or homosexual.

An estimated 472 of the city's more than 10,000 employees would register as partners. This would cost the city an additional $705,000.

At least a dozen other cities, most recently Atlanta, have also approved such a policy.

Homosexuals keep agenda in the news

Here are just a few items from the homosexual news front:

- The United Nations Economic and Social Council voted in late July to give consultative status to the International Lesbian and Gay Association (ILGA). This is the first homosexual group to be given such a voice within the international body.

- The ILGA is a "worldwide federation of national and local groups dedicated to achieving lesbian and gay rights around the globe." Among ILGA's membership is the North American Man Boy Love Association; the Dutch pedophile group, Vereniging Martijn; and various other sadomasochist groups.

- Police in Maryland confiscated 50 box loads of videos and hundreds of books and manuals depicting man/boy sex in what may become one of the most extensive child-pornography rings ever investigated. Among the pornography was material from the North American Man Boy Love Association, an organization that condones sex between adult men and young boys.

- The homosexual boycott of Colorado is failing according to resort and airline bookings. Associated Press recently reported that early resort bookings are causing the ski industry to brace itself for another banner year.

- A homosexual reporter writing in the Washington City Paper thinks Mattel's new Ken doll is homosexually influenced. Called the "Earring Magic Ken Doll," the doll dons a lavender leather vest, an earring, streaked hair and a necklace ornament that is a favorite of homosexual men. A spokesman for Mattel Toy, Inc. ardently denies the reporter's conclusion.

- Steam, a new quarterly journal dedicated unapologetically to "gay and bisexual
